RE: APPOINTMENT OF THE DIRECTOR OF THE CITY PLANNING COMMISSION

This memorandum serves as the Research and Analysis Division's (RAD) response to this Honorable Body's request for an opinion regarding the appointment of the Director of the City Planning Commission (CPC).

DISCUSSION

The 1997 Detroit City Charter provides for a nine-member City Planning Commission that is appointed by and serves at the pleasure of City Council. Sec. 4-401. Section 4-403 provides, in pertinent part, that the "commission may, within appropriations, appoint a staff, exempt from article 6, chapter 5 of this Charter". Although the Charter does not reference specific positions, it is clear that "staff" of the Commission includes the Director.

In a January 24, 2006 memo to Council, Mr. Marcus Loper, Deputy Director of the City Planning Commission, outlines the hiring process followed when Ms. Marsha Bruhn was appointed to serve as Director in 1983:

... the City Planning Commission initially reviewed and interviewed the applicants for the position and the Commission recommended to City Council the 3 candidates for consideration. After the Council interviewed the 3 candidates, it recommended Marsha Bruhn's selection to the Commission¹. The Commission formally made the appointment (See attached – Exhibit B).

Pursuant to Mr. Loper's memo to Council, both Council and the Commission were involved in the selection process while the formal appointment of Ms. Bruhn to serve as Director was made by the Commission. As this Honorable Body is aware, Ms. Bruhn, once appointed, went on to serve in that capacity until she retired in December 2005.

In accordance with the current Charter², the Commission retains the authority to appoint a new Director, within appropriations. However, RAD's research reveals that the Commission no longer has a separate appropriation. Rather, funding for the Commission is listed as a cost center within the appropriation for "City Legislative Functions" (See attached – Exhibit C). The City Planning Commission, therefore, has funding for staff, including a Director, through a cost center in City Council's budget.

CONCLUSION

RAD recommends that the Commission and Council follow the same hiring process used when Ms. Bruhn was appointed to the position of Director of the City Planning Commission. The Commission would prepare the job announcement and job description to be advertised in various publications, conduct an initial review and interview prospective, qualified candidates -- all in accordance with the Open Meetings Act, MCL 15.261 et seq. In a meeting open to the public, the Commission would recommend three candidates to the Council to be interviewed -- again, in an open meeting. By resolution, Council would make a recommendation to the Commission and the Commission would make the formal appointment.

¹ By resolution dated July 20, 1983, City Council recommended to the City Planning Commission that Ms. Bruhn be appointed to the position of Director (See attached – Exhibit A).

RE: CPC Director Ad and job description
DATE: January 24, 2006

In response to your request from yesterday, attached is a copy of the 1982 advertisement and the job description for the City Planning Commission (CPC) Director position. The only information I found regarding placement of the ad indicated that it was in the Detroit Free Press and the Michigan Chronicle. However, attached are lists of organizations and media outlets to which we have sent recent job announcements.

In reviewing some documents on the CPC Director selection process used in 1982 and 1983, I did uncover some additional information. Contrary to my recollection expressed to you yesterday, actually the City Planning Commission initially reviewed and interviewed the applicants for the position and the Commission recommended to City Council the 3 candidates for consideration. After the Council interviewed the 3 candidates, it recommended Marsha Bruhn's selection to the Commission. The Commission formally made the appointment.

There are two Law Department opinions attached that lay out the basis upon which this process was devised based on City Charter language, as well as an opinion from the Council's Research and Analysis Division. I am not entirely clear as to whether the Council or the Commission would formally make the appointment of the Director at this time, since the Commission no longer has a separate appropriation and the staff is funded through a cost center in the City Council's budget. It might be helpful to request an updated opinion from the Law Department to clarify this issue before the process starts.

Re: September 17, 1982 request for an Opinion regarding proposed City Council procedures for appointing City Plan Commission staff

Dear Mr. Scheible:

The authority to appoint City Plan Commission staff is set out in Sections 4-401 and 4-403 of the City Charter. These sections read in pertinent part as follows:

Section 4-401 provides as follows:

"A 9 - member city planning commission shall be appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the city council.

As far as possible, different professions and occupations shall be represented on the commission.

A member must be a resident of the City. The term of office is 3 years and the terms of 3 members expire each year. City council members are eligible for appointment to the commission."

Section 4-403 of the Charter reads as follows:

"The commission may, within appropriations, appoint a staff, exempt from article 6, chapter 5 of this charter."

Mr. Donald Scheible

Based on the above, it is the opinion of this office that it is the City Planning Commission rather than the City Council which has the Charter authority to appoint the City Planning Commission staff. If City Council wishes to make the appointment itself, it may invoke its authority pursuant to Section 4-401 and appoint its own members to the City Planning Commission. To the extent, however, that City Council has appointed to the Planning Commission persons other than City Council members, those persons who have been duly appointed to the City Planning Commission have the authority pursuant to the Charter to make the staff appointments.

It is understood, of course, that pursuant to Section 4-401, members of the City Planning Commission "serve at the pleasure of the City Council", and accordingly, if City Council is displeased with any actions of any members of the Planning Commission those individual members or the Planning Commission as a whole may be removed by the City Council.

Re: Selection of City Planning Commission Director

Dear Mr. Scheible:

The authority to appoint City Planning Commission staff is set out in Sections 4-401 and 4-403 of the City Charter.

Pursuant to the September 17, 1982 request for an opinion regarding proposed City Council procedures for appointing City Planning Commission staff, the Law Department issued its legal opinion dated October 18, 1982 which stated, in part, "that pursuant to Sections 4-401 and 4-403 of the City Charter, the City Planning Commission has the authority to appoint the City Planning staff."

On June 20, 1983, the City Council stated its proposed procedure on the selection of the City Planning Commission director. The City Council proposal is as follows:

The Council requests that the Commission make a determination from amongst those interviewed and submit its choice of three (3) proposed persons to the Council. The Council will then make a recommendation of one person to the City Planning Commission for appointment.

Ronald Scheible

June 28, 1983

Page Two

If the Commission feels that it does not wish to follow the recommendation of the City Council, the Commission should submit a second group of persons that it wishes to consider as its possible choices for the position of Director.

It is the opinion of this office that City Council's proposed procedure in the selection of City Planning Commission director is within the legal guidelines of the City Charter, namely, Sections 4-401 and 4-403.

It should be understood that the City Planning Commission can either accept or reject City Council's proposed procedure and appoint a director without the Council's recommendation.

As previously stated in the legal opinion dated October 18, 1982, pursuant to Section 4-401, members of the City Planning Commission "serve at the pleasure of the City Council," and accordingly, if City Council is displeased with any actions of any members of the Planning Commission those individual members or the Planning Commission as a whole may be removed by the City Council.

Respectfully submitted,

Frank W. Jackson, Supervising

RE: Status and Relationship of CPC to City Council

Section 4-401 of the 1974 Charter and the accompanying Charter commentary provide the basis for determining the status and relationship of the CPC to the City Council.

The Charter provides that the Commission shall be a 9 member body appointed by the City Council.

Section 4-401 and 4-402 specify that the commissioners are appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the Council, and that the duty of the Commission is to advise the City Council on development matters as defined in §6-204 and to perform such other functions as directed by the City Council. The Charter also provides that "...any resolution adopted by the Commission is advisory and shall not be binding until adoption by the City Council."

Section 4-404 provides that the Commission may, within appropriations, appoint a staff...exempt from civil service commissions requirements.

The Commentary, accompanying the above cited charter provisions make it very clear that the Commission's purpose is to provide advisory development information to the City Council. The Commentary specifies that in contrast to the situation which existed in the 1918 Charter the Commission is not constituted in the 1974 Charter as an independent body, but an appointed, advisory body whose sole purpose is to serve the needs of Council as Council and the Charter defines those needs.

The Commentary frankly discusses the past planning practices of the City and goes on to say that:

"Detroit can no longer afford the luxury of planning that is not responsible to the officers charged with raising, appropriating and spending the City's tax dollars."

"...recognizing the Council's policy-making role in planning and development and its need for assistance in planning matters, §4-401 provides that the City planning Commission will be appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the Council."

Because of the need for professional planning expertise and the obvious inability of the commissioners to take day to day responsibility for integral planning and development matters, the Charter contemplated and provided for the Commission to have professional staff assistance to aid in its task of assisting the Council.

While the Commission is charged with engaging the staff, it is obvious that the staff must play a daily role in assisting and serving the Council if the Commission is to fulfill its purpose as established under the Charter.

Obviously, the Commission cannot operate in a vacuum. It is part of an umbrella-group of legislative agencies. It is only reasonable to think that the Commission would operate similarly to other Council agencies.

By no stretch of imagination could it be construed that the Commission is an autonomous body.

The Commission, which meets bi-weekly for only a few hours, is a part-time entity and is not in position to direct the day-to-day operation of the staff.

If the Commission should express an unwillingness to follow the directions of Council, the Council has at least two options:

- 1) To dismiss the Commission and make new appointments.
- 2) To remove the Commission staff appropriation and appoint a planning staff to be reassigned to the Commission by the Council.
